DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: The related application listed on page one must include the fact that it is now a U.S. patent with serial number listed.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 4, 15, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

There is recited in claims 4, 15, and 26 a trademark of a product. Since the product may change from time to time, the claims reciting the trademark are indefinite. The word "based" is considered indefinite as a relative term because the meets and bounds are unknown. The recitation of a particular corporation that the trademarked product is available from is considered indefinite since corporate ownership / availability may change over time.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1, 5, 9, 12, 16, 19, 21, 23, 27-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al.

Frank et al discloses a computerized method for optimizing investments. Tax and investment data is received corresponding to a plurality of investments. There are received user-customized investment expectations (col 5, lines 40-45). A comparative tax sensitivity analysis of the tax and investment data and the analyzed investment expectations are performed (col 10, lines 56-67; col 11, lines 1-6). There is outputted a set of financial investment data, including money valuations, representing an optimal after-tax investment strategy path from a plurality of investment paths over the dynamic taxation time range (col 1, lines 49-55). The investments may be bonds (col 5, lines 49-50). An input window is displayed on the user interface (fig 6).

There is not explicitly disclosed:

“lot-by-lot” basis or taxable “lots”;

derivative rights; and,
comparative pro-forma

Wallman discloses lots (col 1, lines 30-67; col 2, lines 1-21) and derivative rights (col 15, lines 15-23).

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include a lot-by-lot basis including taxable lots to Frank et al because Wallman teaches that considerations of lots have important consequences for investors.

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include derivative rights to Frank et al because Wallman teaches such a type of investment (col 15, line 15).

Kiron et al discloses comparative pro-forma (see abstract).

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include comparative pro-forma to Frank et al in view of Wallman because Kiron et al teaches dissemination requirements to relevant parties (dissemination to shareholders).

6. Claims 2-4, 6, 13-15, 17, 22, 24-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al as applied to claims 1, 5, 12, 16, 21, 23, 27-30 above, and further in view of Reed et al.

Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al does not disclose:

a spreadsheet program with predetermined formula and predetermined cells of a spreadsheet grid; and, a Lotus 1-2-3 spreadsheet.

Reed discloses a spreadsheet program with predetermined formula and predetermined cells of a spreadsheet grid and Lotus 1-2-3 (col 1, lines 9-49).

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include spreadsheet program with predetermined formula and predetermined cells of a spreadsheet grid to Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al because Reed et al teaches spread sheets as useful and including as typical formulas, cells and grids (col 1, lines 13-42).

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include a Lotus 1-2-3 spreadsheet to Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al because Reed et al teaches such as common (col 1, line 9-10).

8. Claims 7-11, 18 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al as applied to claims 1, 5, 12, 16, 21, 23, 27-30 above, and further in view of Howard et al.

Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al does not disclose:

a GUI;

network-based entry window; and,

browser interfacing with server through the Internet or Intranet.

Howard et al discloses GUI (para 0027), network-based entry windows (para 0014), and browser interfacing with server through the Internet or Intranet (para 001).

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include a GUI to Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al because Howard et al teaches GUIs as common.

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include a network-based entry window to Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al because Howard et al teaches such as to allow sensitive information.

It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art to include a browser interfacing with server through the Internet or Intranet to Frank et al in view of Wallman in further view of Kiron et al because Howard et al teaches Internet use for information dissemination and that browser are common for this usage (para 003 and para 0011)
